He moved with his family from Etna to Pittsfield and was living with Annie and her parents in Pittsfield in C/1900. They then moved to Providence, Rhode Island in C/1910 where he was employed as a loom repairman. They divorced soon after and Annie remained in Rhode Island where she was living as late as C/1940. He returned to Maine and remarried in 1914 and was living in Palmyra by C/1920 working for the American Woolen Mill in Hartland. He opened his first grocery store in 1920 at the former A. W. Miller Drug Store location on Main Street then moved to Commercial Street at the Walter Seekins Block location until 1949. He then purchased the Davis Block building at Warren Square and relocated his store there. In 1942 he purchased and moved into the former Blake-Lancey house on Academy Street.
